Ex-KfW manager to join Aliquantum.

Harald Zenke already values the hydropower specialist at EUR 35 million.

London / Essen, March 2017 – Anglo-German New Energy company Aliquantum Energy plc is currently being valued at EUR 35 million. This was the basis on which Harald Zenke has acquired a shareholding in Aliquantum. Zenke, formerly head of Frankfurt's IPEX Bank, a subsidiary of state-subsidy bank 'KfW', where he was responsible for 600 staff and EUR 60 billion of assets under management, has already been involved with Aliquantum Energy plc for a year, as it moves to become a leading European supplier of hydroelectric power.

“It was the Aliquantum business model that convinced me,” says Zenke. “Personal contacts among political and business decision-makers in countries such as those in south-eastern Europe provide the decisive competitive edge when it comes to acquiring suitable investment projects. This, together with the experienced management team on the ground, is the best possible scenario for turning the EUR 100 million infrastructure fund, which is currently undergoing placement on the market, into profitable investments.”

Aliquantum Energy is building a portfolio of attractive hydroelectric power plants with the aim of launching on the stock exchange in the medium term. “We are investing in the next generation of clean energy projects,” says Hans-Peter Floren, Aliquantum CEO and former CEO of E.ON Ruhrgas AG, describing the company's strategy. “Tomorrow's entire energy market is set to be characterised by decentralisation, miniaturisation and autonomous structures, and with our small and medium-sized plants we are taking up position in financially attractive niches in the hydropower markets.”

Aliquantum Energy plc invests capital from institutional investors and high-net-worth private investors in European hydropower generation plants. The initial step is seeing the company acquire small and medium-sized hydroelectric power plants in south-eastern Europe. Electricity from renewable energies is sold in countries like Bosnia and Serbia under a remuneration system similar to that operated in Germany, guaranteeing long-term cash flows of attractive proportions.

Aliquantum Energy plc · 14 Charterhouse Square · London · EC1M 6AX ·
United Kingdom · info@aliquantumenergy.com · www.aliquantumenergy.com

Press release.

Press contact:
Aliquantum Energy plc
14 Charterhouse Square, London EC1M 6AX
United Kingdom
media@aliquantumenergy.com

Aliquantum Energy plc is a New Energy company specializing in hydropower, the answer to clean, sustainable energy supplies in Europe. Investors own holdings in a portfolio of productive hydroelectric power plants in Europe and benefit from attractive returns on the sale of electricity they produce.